FAHAR'S SEAFOOD

Fish Cuts

Steak - Thick, cross-section cut, perpendicular to the spine. Steaks often retain part of the backbone

Fillet - Flesh of the fish is completely cut from the bone in its natural form

Butterfly - One side of the fish is sliced from behind the head, around the belly, and tapered toward the tail. The process is repeated on the other side of the fish, producing a connected or double fillet.

* Head, tail and bone are included in the packing for all types of cuts

 Cleaning involves descaling and removal of guts and will cause 10 to 20% weight loss.

Individually Packed and Sealed
